Description

The general objective of the project is to contribute to more effective functioning of state administration and civic society in Ukraine. The specific objectives are to improve the competences of state administration, self-governments and civic society in implementing green public procurement (GPP) in Kyiv region and to improve the awareness of public administration and civic society in Ukraine on the role of GPP in increasing the effectiveness of public administration, in sustainable development and in climate change mitigation. Ukraine has agreed to approximate the legal system of the country to EU legislation and has taken environmental commitments. The project addresses these commitments, as well as the national commitments in the frame of international agreements and forums, including the Earth Summit Rio+20. The analysis of the legal system in Ukraine conducted in 2014 confirmed that in Ukraine a legal framework exists that allows the implementation of GPP. The approach is however only rarely used and training and awareness rising is needed. The proposed project is the first initiative supporting the practical application of environmental criteria in public procurement in Ukraine, based on experience in Slovakia, in the frame of requirements set by EU. It is complementary to international programmes and projects on policy level, which aim on transposition of laws and reform of the legal system towards EU acquis. The project will analyze in more detail the opportunities and current practices in GPP in Ukraine. It will develop and publish supporting tools for implementation of GPP, including an online training course for subjects implementing public procurement and will conduct a pilot training of officers in GPP in Kyiv region. Through promotional activities the dissemination of project results and their use will be supported. The target groups are subjects implementing public procurement in Ukraine from the state administration, self-governments and non-governmental organizations, which use public funds, and also political decision makers and civic society. Within the group of subjects implementing public procurement there are activities proposed for management of organizations and also for the officials who directly implement the
