Description

The aim of this activity was to expand the generation of young beekeepers who will benefit from the experience of their older colleagues and thus help young people develop a passion for this independent profession. The aim of TAPLIKATSI is to promote young people's interest in beekeeping, to exchange experience at the international level and to gain new knowledge that could be used to produce high quality bee products in Georgia.

IMYB was primarily focused on acquiring the necessary knowledge and skills about beekeeping and apiculture production. There was also an international competition aimed at testing beekeeping skills in practical and theoretical disciplines.
