Description

Humanitarian intervention project in Greece aims to reduce the risk of spread of disease in refugee camps around the town of Katerini, through ensuring basic needs and improve the quality of life of inhabitants of the camps. We plan to achieve main aim by distributing toiletries, hygiene education and providing psycho-social support. The project is implemented together with partner ADRA Germany and is part of an international intervention. Primary target groups are refugees, secondary the project also aimed to employees of other nongovernmental organizations working in the camps.
